Be Careful In building that Home.

POOR LUMBER gives a house a cheap shabby look which makes it difficult to rent. If it is to live in you want to be proud to show it to your friends, and the fuel bills are large where low grade lumber is used. We make a specialty of high grade and "classy" material that you will want to use. We have built up the largest retail business in Western Canada by being very fussy as to grades and selling better stuff than is sold elsewhere at prices as low as those asked for the inferior kinds. If your contractor uses CROWN LUMBER it means that he is a man who wants the best of everything and it is the best recommendation he could have!

Thomas A. Edison announces his New Cylinder Phonograph Record The Blue Amberol

The Blue Amberol is a musical and mechanical triumph. Its volume is greater, and its tone is decidedly finer than any other phonograph record you can buy. And it is practically unbreakable and unwearying. Careless handling will not injure it, and no amount of playing will cause it to reproduce less perfectly than when new.

Ask your Edison dealer to play a Blue Amberol Record for you on an Edison Phonograph today, or write us for particulars.

FONDLING BABIES.

It is Bad For Their Nerves and Injurious to Health.

"Too much love kills many babies" is the opinion of Mrs. Mary Hines, for years matron of the Sunnyside day nursery in Boston. "There is too much fondling, fondling and caressing" on the part of the mothers. "Babies are not any longer when called by mothers or neighbors. In fact, it makes many of them mischievous. I have known a mother to play away and die from the lack of physical attention. Take your child for an example. When not feeling well would you enter her by yourself on a couch or lie close up against her chest? Well, this is the baby's feeling exactly unless his constant handling has made him prefer it.

"Fondling is bad for children, because it might give them serious disease, and it certainly does no good. If mothers would consider that a baby has rights the same as a grown person there would be fewer sick babies and much of this harmful affection would be abandoned.

"The love of many mothers seems to be wholly to gratify the whims of the child, which is not a sane love. It is really true. In my experience that where there is a large family of children the individual child is stronger and healthier."

"It is that because only the fittest survive" was asked.
"That's not" replied the matron. "It is simply because each child does not get so much attention and therefore is weakened by an excess of affection. It learns to stand up for itself."

BLUFFED AND WON.

A Scheme That Ensnared Two to Ride an Old Trick.

There were two comedians who had been stuck in a village near the Cleveland market a mile away. And the first comedian, being the more enterprising of the two, had, furthermore, what they call the "feeder" of the team, says he.

"What's the next?"
"I'll tell you—let's count the house."

"They emptied their pockets and found that by squandering their money they could manage to buy a ticket to Cleveland—one ticket. They did it and started forth, the two gnomes of the stage, on a single piece of pasteboard. Of course the conductor kicked."

"There's only one ticket here," he growled.
"You're mine," said one of the actors.

"You lie!" mine, put in the other polly.
"Well, you can't both ride on one ticket," said the conductor. "I'll have to put one of you off the train."

"We can't," quipped the actors in chorus. "Put me off—go ahead and do it!"

"Well, I can't do it here, but one of you must get off at the next station."

"But three local stations passed, and the conductor didn't come back. As a matter of fact, he never appeared until just before Cleveland was reached."

"I think somebody's a graffer," he remarked in passing, "but my orders are to take the safe side where there's a possibility of mistake. Good night. Can let either one of you if I ever see you again!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Small Boy and His Hat.
He dips his hat across the dining room when he comes in from school or leaves it in all manner of places in the house, in the coat closet or on a table.

He loses it just at church time and spoils the spirit of family reverence and piety. As the family enters the church the anthem is being sung, and the disgrace of being late again is laid on the innocent head piece clutched in the hand of the small boy who has already forgotten the confusion of which he was the cause twenty minutes ago. In this stage also one's hat is returned on the way to school by the hand of one's friend, passed down the line of surrounding bow companions, stuffed into others' pockets, while dire thoughts of ultimate loss hold one in their grip, and the reckoning to be paid at home warns the world in tragedy.—George L. Parker in Atlantic.

Reads Words Standing.
One peculiar bird with regard to his writing Charles Berde shared with other famous novelists. He could not remain seated at a table, but did his work standing at a high desk. This was characteristic also of Victor Hugo who wrote the whole of "Les Misérables" standing. While Collette, we are told, declared that his thoughts flowed more freely when standing in his feet. In direct contrast, one recalls that Mrs. Twain did much of his work propped up in bed and that Sir Walter Scott found his brain clearer when reclining comfortably on a couch—London Chronicle.

Making a Good Start.
"You may just about women's conventions, but I think women are pretty wise. Now, my wife's club appointed committee to end economy in dress."

"Well."
"They started out by going to a musical comedy."—Washington Herald.

The Better Way.
"It is better to trust and be deceived than to be suspicious of everybody."

"Yes, but it is just as well as a rule to keep your bank account in your wife's name if you are going to do any widespread trusting."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Though daffodil blossoms like friendship, yet there is a great difference in the fruit.—Scotts.

SOCIAL LIFE IN FRANCE.

Women Equal Partners With the Man In All Amusements.

Frenchmen cannot live alone; there must always be an Eve in their paradise. The bachelor party, which is a common feature in English social life, is unknown in France. How can men enjoy themselves without women?

Women in their enjoyment. It is only the old Englishman who would have been able to play golf while his wife sits at home.

The French man's first essay in the royal and aristocratic game is always accompanied by a feminine relative—his wife, his aunt and his mother-in-law. It is only when he has become a professional player and realizes the notions of his etiquette that he resorts to a woman friend for an hour or two from feminine society.

Unless he plays advanced golf he will always prefer his wife's society on the links to that of a man.

That is why club life is impossible in Paris except as a life of a special sort involving bores and high stakes and spending money in the most luxurious class. Yet in this case compensation is offered to the unfortunate goddesses who are abandoned to their husbands and to the "unlucky." She is invited to weekly theatrical entertainments at the club—entertainments provided for by the way, by the card money squandered by the men. And the exhibitions of all sorts that flourish at the club—dinner every one has some artistic mission—so many occasions for the mixing of the sexes.—From "France and the French," by Charles Davidson.

MARRIED MISERY.

Indifference Plays Havoc With Happiness in the Home.

The foe of married happiness is indifference. The road wrong to the wife, the real failure of the husband, is when he becomes careless of her. She is toiling for him and what she is to be his.

At first her husband is bored and his affection is delightful to him. Then selfishness becomes a thing of course—neutral, enjoyed in a fashion, but hardly thought of. And sometimes, though not so frequently, the wife becomes indignant of her husband.

Perhaps into most marriages there creeps on one side or on both some of this indifference. Husband and wife live together, but each is an external relation. He is the breadwinner, she is the housekeeper. They accept each other's good qualities as men were easy giving critics, without any of the criticism which men are so ready to make with a smug conscience of any other assurance.

They never confess to no attention. They have only good to say to each other. It is the same "getting used" that robs life of its brightness; that makes us blind to the stars and the clouds and the beauty of the world.

Perhaps we have seen them so often; that keeps us mostly in a numb, half-awake state, from which only occasionally are we roused to feel that we are living in a divine universe and are ourselves divine.—George Merriam in "The Man of Letters."

Knighthood For Women.

It is not at all well known that knighthood has constantly been conferred upon women. Many English ladies received the accolade, and many more were members of such knightly orders as the Garter and St. John.

When Mary Chomondore, "the bold lady of Chesham," was knighted by Elizabeth for "her valiant address" on the queen taking command at the threatened invasion by Spanish ships, she knew that a whole city of Spanish women in gallant woman's armor would have been knighted for saving that city from the Moors; Mary and Elizabeth had both been knighted at that coronation, but by the time Anne, the second Mary and Victoria ascended the throne it had been quite forgotten that, according to English law and use, a woman who filled a man's office acquired all his privileges and was immune from none of his duties.—London Graphic.

The Volcano of Kilaua.

Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, as high as Vesuvius and twice as wide, lies thirty miles from the sea in a mountain range. There have been several outbreaks of Kilauea in the last hundred years. In 1840 there was a brilliant eruption of lava, the first that, it was reported, could be seen a hundred miles away. When the lava flowed through the forest it left great holes in the shape of lava arches, bridges and great caves. These were formed by the lava falling first about some forty feet trunk, burning away the wood within and filling the upper part of the tree. In the course of time these were deposited in the lava, and filled with lava, and now there is a gigantic lava vase holding ferns and flowers and vines.

The Passing of Romance.

The last romance of 1770, the last of all, of you, and your neighbors! The British have left Boston and are now marching the way we'll be here before daybreak!

If it Happened Now.—Belo, long distance. Give me Omelette, eggs, lettuce, * * * This Lexington! Well, it is better. The British are coming. The of Concord, will just Thanks Goodby.—Puck.

Instead of From the Middle.

"They say this is a great detective story."

"The book begins well, anyhow."

"Why, in the very first chapter the detective finds the ashes from the end of his cigar."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Poles No Ornament

(Crowded out Last Week.)

Judging by the reports of the papers "The Canadian Western Natural Gas, Light, Heat & Power Company, Limited" are having troubles of their own, therefore we have refrained from publicly commenting on some of their dealings with the farmers of this locality until the present time, as we are always averse to seeing three or four dogs jump on one at the same time.

To begin with, last spring the Company sent an agent of theirs to the farmers asking them to sign an agreement or easement to allow the Gas Company to put a gas pipe line through their farms, agreeing to pay a small amount for the privilege, in the same time assuring the farmers there would be nothing above ground connected with their farms and allowing the farmer the unrestricted right to use the same only in case of necessary repairs and connections.

So far so good, but when the Gas Company intended putting in a telephone line along the pipe line and claiming their right by their agreement or easement which the farmers had signed in good faith according to the representation of the Gas Company's agent, but which proved to be voided in an arbitrary manner, apparently for the purpose of depriving the farmers.

Then when certain farmers went to the Manager of the Company complaining of their unjust treatment he made a new agreement with them that if they would pay back the contract price of the "right of way" through their farms the Company would put the telephone line around the roads or boundary fences and not cut up their farms with it which the farmers agreed to do. In other words the Gas Company asked the right to put their gas pipe line through the farms for nothing and the farmers agreed to it rather than suffer the loss of the depreciation of the land on account of the telephone poles cutting the farms in two diagonally.

But no sooner did they get to these farms with their lines than they began setting their poles directly across the farms they had agreed to be around, in direct violation of their written agreement, and when the farmers tried to stop them they claimed the right by act of the legislature to take just what they wanted regardless of any one's rights. The question is, have they this right? If so how did they get it? Wherefore then this right? What was our Minister of Agriculture doing when this piece of legislation was being prepared that he did not look out for the farmers instead of a giant corporation? How can the Sifton Government come to the farmers of this vicinity and ask their support in face of such treatment?

It looks bad when one takes into consideration the fact that Clifford Sifton, the brother of the Premier of Alberta, is the principal stockholder in the Gas Company.

ROUTED THE "ROGUE."

A Bad Elephant, a Lighted Lamp and a Lucky Blow.

An odd experience fell to the lot of three men who were on a tiger hunting expedition in India.

To prevent the invasion of mosquitoes and other insects that would be attracted by the light in their quarters the heavy cotton curtains which formed the door of the tent were closed and the three friends were chatting across the table when suddenly the whole tent shook and the curtains were round to see the cause the heavy curtain was roughly shoved over, and in the open doorway appeared the head of a big elephant.

The men had no time to catch up their rifles. They knew by the appearance of the animal that he meant mischief. Lifting up the roof of the tent with his head he threateningly swung out his trunk at the men and beat him.

At this the hunter sprang to his feet and, seizing the lighted lamp from the table, hurled it with all his strength against the animal's forehead. The blow broke at the animal's forehead, the light oil covered the animal's trunk with a sheet of flame.

With a cry of terror the beast drew frantically back, shook off the curtain and fled across the country, vanquished by a single blow from an oil lamp. It was a fortunate act, for the animal was no doubt a "rogue" and would probably have killed one or more of the men—Exchange.

MODES OF TRAVEL.

From the Jaunting Car to the Modern Electric Railway.

The first jaunting car was established in Ireland in 1813 by a Milanese, Carlo Bianconi, who settled in Dublin and drove every day to Caher and back, charging twopence a mile. From this small beginning in 1857 he had established sixty-seven conveyances, drawn by 900 horses.

The extension of modern manufacturing towns and cities demanded still stricter conveyances, which were supplied at first by the omnibus lines which up to 1860 were the chief means of urban and suburban transportation. To this succeeded the streetcar, traversed by cars drawn by one or more horses, and these in turn became wholly inadequate to meet the demand of the suburban districts.

The cable car, drawn by underground cables, was the next innovation, but this about 1880 to 1890 was supplanted by the electric trolley lines, and these again were superseded in many cities by elevated and subway lines in which the cars were propelled by electricity supplied by a third rail. This latter device has already been applied to extended lines of railroads, and it is not unlikely that the present century will witness the electric trolley on most of the railroad lines in the United States—National Geographic.

Moral—Don't Be a Goat.

The poet while out knowing thought he was a noble and noble animal in the way that goats have—around the side of the house of the well, they nibbled the fence and forced the farmer to the hairy lotter.

"But, my dear ones," said the poet, "I have your house in turn. I have seen the shepherd step back only to see a goat and a goat's head against your dwelling in a way that almost overcame it. And you did not say a word to him. Why should there be any difference in your treatment of me?"

The poet tickled the goats. "There is a marked difference," he said, "when it is a goat that I can meet a goat, but I can't eat a goat."

Whereupon he fell to and made a quick and satisfying meal of the unhappy creature.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Goat Filled.

A gold filled tooth and your gold fill match case may be said to be in very close analogy; that is to say, your gold filled tooth has more or less of the tooth structure of enamel on the outside with gold on a core filling the center. Your gold filled match case consists of two sheets of gold, having between each sheet some heavy metal to which the gold is soldered. As to the gold in the case, if it may be of any use and any thickness commensurate with the term "gold filled." A jeweler will tell you that to erect a gold filled, having to get an assurance of your metal. Many persons have the idea that the gold filled case is an amalgam of the kind instead of a "sandwich" of gold treated in the inside with the inner metal.

Our Quier Language.

Isn't it a queer language? A New York informant saw a woman in the street with a carpet and a stick. "That it," he heard her exclaim. "Whereas the woman carried the carpet with the stick and the policeman arrested her for violating a street ordinance."

The police heard the woman's story and called out: "That it," he said to her, and the time she disappeared and turned away, Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"You," remarked the well known stranger, "I have seen the old man doing a good much."

"That's no mistake!" queried the man behind the white apron. "Neither," he went on, "of the sad case." "It's a mistake!"

REVIVE AND STAY REVIVED.

The revival of the board of trade is important. But not more important than keeping it alive and vigorous when it is revived. Perhaps the greatest difficulty in attaining this end is the fact that there is, on the one hand, so little that the individual member of the board can do alone, the routine work devolving on the secretary, and on the other hand, so little to attract and challenge the attention and thought of the individual member. It has been our belief for some time that the board of trade does not exist for the work of attracting outside attention solely, but also for mediating a thinking, re-awakening loyalty to the town in the hearts and minds of the business men of the town. Supposing that some time in the next few weeks we were to have a board of trade dinner and invite one or more, who have studied and thought along the line of board of trade efficiency, to be present and lead discussion on matters pertaining to the field open to the board of trade in a small town. Follow up this dinner with an active campaign for members. Appoint a regular, least bi-monthly, meeting night. Arrange a program of subjects for the introduction and the leading of the discussion of which one member shall be responsible. Associate with the leader one other as an assistant. Lead the aim of the leaders of each meeting be to promote discussion. If the themes be timely and interesting the attendance of the members will be ensured. The secretary can at each meeting inform the members what he has been doing, what enemies he has received, what progress has been made in any special endeavor. Correspondence with the leaders of the larger organization can be begun and perhaps the secretary of the Associated Boards of Trade of Southern Alberta might come to the line with short letters on the wider questions of policy affecting not the individual town alone, but the entire portion of the province covered by the Associated Boards. Bring in somewhat the business men's club idea and develop a social as well as a business organization to preserve interest in the board during the entire year.

The rate-payers made no mistake, in our judgment, in the nominees chosen to fill the vacancies on the council and the trustee boards. The selection of Mayor Holmes to remain at the head of the municipal administration is a very sensible one. We advocated, last year, the election of retaining the services of Mr. Miller to the town. Mr. Miller's resignation offer for reelection, at the rate-payers honored Mr. Holmes with the seat. The result proving most satisfactory. The Mayor was not simply a chairman of a board but was an adviser and a director of the activities of the council but not an onlooker.

The re-appointment by resolution of J. J. Armstrong and the election of the Rev. Wm. McNeel to the trustee boards by the renewal of Mr. Holden to Vancouver, leaves the P. S. board as efficient as the board of 1912 has proved itself.

Of the four candidates for councilors the citizens must select three. The two retiring members are the 1912 Council, Messrs. Horton and Barry, were each of the two most important committees, the Light and the Water respectively. The latter dependence of these departments, with the rule-of-thumb, no thanks of apportioning the expenses of operation between the town, most of necessity, to some railway company, the two departments. This does not always work out in the best interests of either case. It is necessary that some more exact apportionment be made and consolidated them and place them in the hands of a commission. We believe that a strong, capable head over the operation of the town will be combined, would be more satisfactory from a business standpoint.

Of Mr. Horton it can be said that he was very efficient in his administration at the council meetings, that he gave most attention to his best judgment to the discharge of his duties as councilor and chairman of the light committee.

Of Mr. Barry the same applies and his technical knowledge has been in the disposal of the trustees in their municipal affairs most generously. It had the department that carries on the business and would not mind the influence to the right side of the ledger under existing conditions. His intimacy with the working question, especially in view of public administration, would suggest if the report of sixteen trustees in a recent letter with the matter for another year, hoping that with the vigorous policy suggested to the 1913 council the water problem will be solved satisfactorily soon in a way that will be to the town's great benefit.

Mr. McKinnon is not inexperienced on council matters having served several and ably on previous occasions. He is a business man, even in judgment and, we believe, would set the "greenbacks" on an engine, checking loss or financial affairs but not impairing public service. The town should appoint the electors.

Mr. Brown's candidature is most heartily approved. We did not hesitate to urge as far as our small influence might go, the candidature of this gentleman. We desire his election in the best interests of the taxpayers of this town. His business qualities and general fitness are undoubted. We look to see Mr. Brown awarded a most enthusiastic reception.

Make all Doubtful Seeds Tested for Vitality

Ordinarily the fact that climatic conditions have again been unfavorable in certain districts to the satisfactory raising of seed grain, we wish to draw the attention of every farmer to the probability of having his seed tested for germination.

Ons are particularly subject to injury by frost, and in certain stages of their growth are rendered worthless for seed purposes even though they may look perfectly plump and sound externally. Others again, though not actually frozen, are not seriously affected in vitality. As a general rule, the only sure in the raising of the grain's condition in such cases, is to have the seed tested for vitality.

If YOU Purchase Property NOW in

LETHBRIDGE

You make an absolutely SAFE investment and one that will yield large returns in the not distant future.

WHY?

1. BECAUSE Lethbridge has the Smallest Area inside the City limits of any city in Western Canada, less than six square miles.

2. BECAUSE Lethbridge unlike other Cities in the West can grow in only one direction, thus making Wild-Catting impossible. Every lot yet sold will be required for building when R. B. Bennett's prediction is fulfilled that "coal alone in very few years must make Lethbridge a City of from 40,000 to 60,000 people."

3. BECAUSE Lethbridge has never been boomed and hence prices for property are now lower than in any other city of equal size in the West.

4. BECAUSE, as leading Canadian financiers acknowledged during this last year, Lethbridge is one of the most solid cities in Canada.

5. BECAUSE Lethbridge has already established its claims as being the distributing centre of over 30,000 square miles of the richest land in America.

6. BECAUSE the C. P. R. having acquired immense holdings around Lethbridge will there duplicate that work which had made Calgary "the Queen City of the Foothills." They must make their investment pay dividends. Did you see last week's announcement that they are going to build new up-to-date freight sheds and double their trackage facilities? That is their first step, watch for the others to follow.

7. BECAUSE other Railways are planning to enter Lethbridge, bringing that competition that is essential to rapid development.

8. BECAUSE plans have already been formed to link Lethbridge up to all the surrounding mining centres by a Radial Railway which will mean increased traffic for the city.

9. BECAUSE Lethbridge has the Greatest Industry in the West, Coal mining. P. L. Naismith, General-Manager, of the A. R. & I. Co., (recently absorbed by the C. P. R.) owners of the famous Galt Mines, said "Ten thousand miners will be at work in the mines around Lethbridge in the next six years." How many small industries employing from 20 to 75 men would be required to equal that one great industry? Sir Montague Allen, President of the Merchant's Bank of Canada says "Lethbridge in its great coal deposits has sufficient to guarantee the City's future."

10 BECAUSE its natural resources are such as must attract the attention of manufacturers and secure many other Industries which will bring more homeseekers, which in turn will increase the value of your property if you have had the foresight to secure some.

Mitford and Company offer you two excellent opportunities in different parts of the City.

PARKSIDE in the coming High Class Residential District of the City.

DOMINION SQUARE the restricted residential area in the Industrial District, the sale of which has doubtless broken all records for Lethbridge.

If you have waited until it is too late to get into the swim in Calgary or Edmonton, don't make the same mistake again and miss the great opportunity that Lethbridge now offers.

"Keep to-day's date with OPPORTUNITY and to-morrow you can change her name to ACHIEVEMENT."

See us to-day and secure some lots before they are all gone.

Forest Ranger's Houses
To be Built on Many Dominion Reserves

In order to protect and administer the Dominion Forest Reserves to the best advantage, they are being subdivided into ranger districts and houses are being built at strategic points for the use of the rangers in charge. The first of such houses to be occupied on the Duck Mountain Forest Reserve is located at Mudge Lake, a few miles from Kamusack, Sask.

Mudge Lake is a beautiful, island-studded sheet of water, covering seven square miles, and this rugged dwelling is picturesquely placed on its south shore. It is a comfortable house, well planned and well lighted, containing living rooms, as well as bedrooms. It will be painted a dark green with white trimmings.

The trail from this ranger station to Kamusack will next year be widened and otherwise improved. This will benefit the ranger, convenience the public who have forest business to transact, and induce an increasing number of people to enjoy the many delights of the summer outing at Mudge Lake.

The ranger at this station has direct charge of some two hundred and thirty square miles of highly valuable young second growth spruce and poplar forest and his central object and work will be to safeguard it from fire by every possible means, so that in two or three decades it may yield welcome and abundant supplies of fuel and lumber to the dwellers on the prairies.

Brooks has a millman who tried to charge 25c a quart for his milk. He came down to 12 1/2 cents later, why we do not know.
